Network programming and services are radio's national currency: A large and diverse catalog of syndicated audio content, which includes everything from 24-hour music channels to sports talk and political analysis, as well as some of the biggest personalities in radio.

BENEFITS & DEMOGRAPHICS OF OVER THE AIR TV

BENEFITS:

Over The Air TV has quite a few benefits over traditional cable and satellite. The biggest perk is that it's free. You can still watch all your shows but without any monthly charges to watch your favorite shows. Viewers also appreciate that there are no contracts to sign.

OTA uses simple equipment as well. There are no complicated boxes to break, nothing to install. There's no need to have a technician come out to your house and no need to replace any expensive equipment if you discover that something isn't working.

Instead, you install the antenna yourself and scan periodically for the channels you can receive. This is a simple step and allows you to get television almost immediately.

DEMOGRAPHICS:

Even though streaming has boomed over the last few years, and rapidly accelerated by the Covid-19 pandemic, the potentially disrupting role of over-the-air (OTA) access to and viewing of TV content has been somewhat understated and the ongoing sector is equally as fast-growing says a study from Horowitz Research.

According to the State of OTA 2020 study, two-fifths of US TV content viewers over 18 report owning an OTA antenna, up from 29% compared with the same time a year ago. With Nielsen estimating that there are 121 million TV households for the 2020-2021 TV season, Horowitz said that this translates to approximately 48.4 million households with an antenna. Demographically, the data show large increases in antenna penetration among black households (year-on-year 27% to 39%), among white, non-Hispanic households (25% to 43%), and importantly, among 18-34 year-olds (20% to 42%), a 110% increase year over year.
